ILLUSTRATORS

A Finding List Compiled by Louise P. Latimer, The Public Library, Washington, D. C.

This list has been prepared to meet a need of the Young People's Department of the Public Library of the District of Columbia. It aims to include American and foreign illustrators whose work, in books for girls and boys, seems of sufficient merit to warrant inclusion*. The list is not exhaustive, however, in the number of examples of each illustrator's work and is confined to titles in English and in print. A few authors, such as Kipling and Thackeray, who have illustrated their own books in a distinctive manner, have been included.

Some of the illustrators have, in their work, elements that appeal especially to children, warm color, story-telling quality, simplicity of line and detail. Others tend to the decorative, the sophisticated, and highly fanciful, the introspective or poster styles.

The list aims to answer questions asked in a children's department by artists, teachers, book-lovers and those seeking information about available illustrators. It has all the faults inherent in a piece of work attempting to satisfy such differing approaches to the subject.
